Civil Monetary Penalties: Federal Agencies' Compliance with the 2020 Annual Inflation Adjustment Requirements

Civil monetary penalties provide federal agencies with the ability to punish willful and egregious violators, deter future violations, and enforce regulatory policies government-wide. However, if agencies do not periodically adjust these penalties for the effects of inflation, the penalties may lose their effectiveness and agencies may lose opportunities to collect significant federal receipts. Thus, Congress passed the Federal Civil Penalties Inflation Adjustment Act of 1990 to allow for agencies to adjust their covered civil monetary penalties for inflation, to promote compliance, and to improve the collection of penalties.¹ The act, as amended,² hereinafter referred to as the Inflation Adjustment Act (IAA),³ includes a provision added in 2015 for GAO to ¹The Federal Civil Penalties Inflation Adjustment Act of 1990, Pub. L. No. 101-410, 104 Stat. 890 (Oct. 5, 1990).

²The Federal Civil Penalties Inflation Adjustment Act of 1990, as amended by the Debt Collection Improvement Act, Pub. L. No. 104-134, § 31001(s)(1), 110 Stat. 1321–373 (Apr. 26, 1996), and the Federal Civil Penalties Inflation Adjustment Act Improvements Act of 2015, Pub. L. No. 114-74, title VII, § 701, 129 Stat. 584, 599–601 (Nov. 2, 2015), is referred to as the Inflation Adjustment Act or IAA and is codified as amended at 28 U.S.C. § 2461 note. The IAA defines a civil monetary penalty as any penalty, fine, or other sanction that is (1) for a specific monetary amount or has a maximum amount, provided for by federal law; (2) assessed or enforced by an agency pursuant to federal law; and (3) assessed or enforced by an agency in an administrative proceeding or a civil action in the federal courts.

³As provided by IAA amendments made in 2015, the penalties under the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 and the Social Security Act are now subject to the inflation adjustment requirements, whereas those under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and the Tariff Act of 1930 remain excluded from coverage.

annually submit to Congress a report assessing the compliance of agencies with the required civil monetary penalty adjustments.⁴

This fifth annual review responds to the statutory provision for us to assess agencies' compliance with the civil monetary penalty adjustments for inflation as required by the IAA. Specifically, our objective was to determine if each agency subject to the IAA published 2020 civil monetary penalty inflation adjustments in the Federal Register as of December 31, 2020, and reported information about civil monetary penalties within the agency's jurisdiction in its 2020 agency financial report (AFR) submitted under Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Circular A-136.⁵ This circular provides guidance to agencies that produce either AFRs or performance and accountability reports and government corporations that produce annual management reports.⁶ For purposes of this report, AFR refers to all three types of agency reports.

To address our objective, we used the list of 48 agencies from our prior report representing the population of agencies that could be subject to the IAA's applicable provisions.⁷ To assess completeness of the list, we searched the Federal Register for calendar year 2020 to determine whether any agencies published civil monetary penalty inflation adjustments that were not on the list.⁸ We concluded that the list was reliable for our purposes. We reviewed agencies' inflation adjustments published in the Federal Register as of December 31, 2020, and related information reported in the 2020 AFRs to determine whether the agencies reported information about civil monetary penalties within their jurisdictions, including the 2020 annual inflation adjustment of the civil monetary penalty amounts, pursuant to the IAA and OMB Circular A-136, as applicable.⁹ We did not verify the accuracy of agencies' inflation adjustments or reported civil monetary penalty information. We contacted officials at agencies that had not, in whole or in part, published civil monetary penalty inflation adjustments in the Federal Register or reported civil monetary penalty information in their AFRs to confirm our findings.

We conducted this performance audit from January 2021 to May 2021 in accordance with generally accepted government auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and ⁴We reported on the results of our review of agencies' compliance with the 2019 annual inflation adjustment of the civil monetary penalty amounts as required by the IAA in GAO, Civil Monetary Penalties: Review of Federal Agencies' Compliance with the 2019 Annual Inflation Adjustment Requirements, GAO-20-538R (Washington, D.C.: June 10, 2020).

⁵Office of Management and Budget, Financial Reporting Requirements, OMB Circular A-136 (Washington, D.C.: August 2020).

⁶Agencies and government corporations generally operate on a fiscal year that ends on September 30 and issue their annual reports in accordance with OMB Circular A-136 (generally mid-November of the same calendar year), while some operate on a different fiscal year basis and may issue their reports on a different date. OMB Circular A-136 does not require government corporations to report civil monetary penalty information in their annual management reports; however, some do include this information.

⁷This list of agencies includes some government corporations; therefore, in this report, "agency" includes government corporations. See GAO-20-538R.

⁸Because there is no current, comprehensive database that identifies each agency with civil monetary penalty authority subject to the IAA's applicable provisions, we cannot be sure that we have identified all of the agencies or penalties covered by the act.

⁹Two agencies reported information about their civil monetary penalties, including the 2020 annual inflation adjustment, in their calendar year 2019 AFRs. For these two agencies, we reviewed the 2019 AFRs.

perform the audit to obtain sufficient, appropriate evidence to provide a reasonable basis for our findings based on our audit objective. We believe that the evidence obtained provides a reasonable basis for our findings based on our audit objective.

In summary, 46 of the 48 agencies that we reviewed for 2020 that could be subject to certain requirements of the IAA have complied with the applicable provisions. They published the 2020 annual inflation adjustment of the civil monetary penalty amounts within their agencies' jurisdictions in the Federal Register as of December 31, 2020, and reported related information about civil monetary penalties in their 2020 AFRs, as required by the IAA and OMB Circular A-136. However, two agencies—the Department of the Treasury and the General Services Administration (GSA)—did not publish inflation adjustments in the Federal Register as of December 31, 2020, and did not report in their 2020 AFRs the required information for one or more of their civil monetary penalties. For further details on each agency's reporting status for 2020, see enclosure I.

Figure 1 summarizes the status of the required reporting since we issued our first report in August 2017.¹⁰ As shown in the figure, our assessments have found that the majority of the agencies that could be subject to the IAA's provisions have complied with the provisions of the act.

^aFor years 2016 through 2018, our review included 52 agencies that could be subject to applicable provisions of the Federal Civil Penalties Inflation Adjustment Act of 1990, as amended. In our 2019 review, we removed four agencies—the Department of Homeland Security/Department of Labor (DHS/DOL) joint rulemaking, International Trade Commission (ITC), Postal Regulatory Commission (PRC), and Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA). Specifically, we determined that (1) the DHS/DOL joint rulemaking was not applicable to the 2019 annual inflation adjustment and both departments reported the required information separately, (2) ITC and TVA had determined that they were not subject to the IAA’s applicable provisions, and (3) PRC was not considered an agency under the definition applicable to the act. Thus, our 2019 and 2020 reviews included a total of 48 agencies.

^bResults reported for 2017 only include our assessment of whether agencies reported all required information in the AFR. Our review was limited to agencies’ 2017 AFRs and not the Federal Register publications for purposes of their 2017 annual inflation adjustment reporting.

Agency Comments

We provided a draft of this report to OMB, GSA, and Treasury for review. OMB informed us that it had no comments on the draft report. GSA informed us that it published up-to-date inflation adjustments in the Federal Register on April 26, 2021, and had no additional comments on the draft report. We verified this information and updated enclosure I. Treasury did not provide comments.

^aNIGC officials previously stated that NIGC is an independent federal regulatory agency within DOI and that NIGC's financial information is consolidated and reported under DOI's AFR.

^bFCSIC and NCUA reported information about their civil monetary penalties, including the 2020 annual inflation adjustment, in their calendar year 2019 annual reports, issued in July 2020 and February 2020, respectively.

^cFDIC and PBGC are listed under the definition of "government corporation" under 31 U.S.C. § 9101, and Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Circular A-136 does not require government corporations to report civil monetary penalty information in an AFR.

^dFRB officials previously stated that FRB is required to prepare financial statements under the Federal Reserve Act (12 U.S.C. § 248b) and as such is not required to submit an AFR under OMB Circular A-136.

^eUSPS officials previously stated that pursuant to statute under Title 39, USPS does not submit an AFR to OMB under Circular A-136 and therefore is not required to report civil monetary penalties information in an AFR.
