Subject: Consumer Product Safety Commission: Final Rule: Standard for the Flammability (Open Flame) of Mattress Sets

The final rule is a new flammability standard under the Flammable Fabrics Act and establishes new performance requirements based on research conducted by the National Institute of Standards and Technology. Mattresses and foundation sets that comply with the requirements will generate a smaller size fire with a slower growth rate, thus reducing the possibility of flashover occurring.

Enclosed is our assessment of the Commission’s compliance with the procedural steps required by section 801(a)(1)(B)(i) through (iv) of title 5 with respect to the rule. Our review indicates that the Commission complied with the applicable requirements.
If you have any questions about this report, please contact James W. Vickers, Assistant General Counsel, at (202) 512-8210.

The midpoint estimate for aggregate benefits is $1,166 million. The corresponding expected aggregate resource costs of the rule are $175 to $511 million. The midpoint estimate for aggregate costs is $343 million. The aggregate net benefits equal $514 to $1,132 million. The midpoint estimate for aggregate net benefits is $823 million.

The Commission prepared an Initial Regulatory Flexibility Analysis and a Final Regulatory Flexibility Analysis in connection with the proposed rule and final rule, respectively. The analyses comply with the requirements of the Act including the steps taken to reduce the burden on small entities. These include providing an effective date that coincides with the regular model/style change and the elimination of the requirements for keeping physical samples.

(iii) Agency actions relevant to sections 202-205 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995, 2 U.S.C. §§ 1532-1535

The Commission states that the final rule does not contain any federal mandates, as defined in title II of the Act, of more than $100 million in any one year.
