Subject: Department of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration: Real-Time System Management Information Program

Pursuant to section 801(a)(2)(A) of title 5, United States Code, this is our report on a major rule promulgated by the Department of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration (FHWA), entitled “Real-Time System Management Information Program” (RIN: 2125-AF19). We received the rule on November 9, 2010. It was published in the Federal Register as a final rule; request for comments on November 8, 2010. 75 Fed. Reg. 68,418.

The final rule establishes a Real-Time System Management Information Program that provides the capacity to monitor in real-time the traffic and travel conditions of the major highways of the United States in all states and to share these data with state and local governments and the traveling public. The rule establishes minimum parameters and requirements for states to make available and share information about traffic and travel conditions via real-time information programs.

The Congressional Review Act requires a 60-day delay in the effective date of a major rule from the date of publication in the Federal Register or receipt of the rule by Congress, whichever is later. 5 U.S.C. § 801(a)(3)(A). The rule was published in the Federal Register on November 8, 2010, and received November 9, 2010. It has a stated effective date of December 23, 2010. However, FWHA states in the rule that establishment of the real-time information program for traffic and travel conditions reporting along the interstate system highways is to be completed by November 8, 2014, and along state-designated metropolitan area routes of significance is to be completed by November 8, 2016. Therefore, to the extent that provisions of this rule have a stated effective date of December 23, 2010, this rule does not have the required 60-day delay in its effective date.

Enclosed is our assessment of the FHWA’s compliance with the procedural steps required by section 801(a)(1)(B)(i) through (iv) of title 5 with respect to the rule. Our review of the procedural steps taken indicates that FHWA complied with the applicable requirements.

If you have any questions about this report or wish to contact GAO officials responsible for the evaluation work relating to the subject matter of the rule, please contact Shirley A. Jones, Assistant General Counsel, at (202) 512-8156.
