

James-Christian Braxton Blockwood
Managing Director
Strategic Planning and External Liaison
U.S. Government Accountability Office

Mr. Blockwood is a career member of the Senior Executive Service with extensive experience developing and implementing long-range, enterprise-wide strategies. He currently serves as the Managing Director for Strategic Planning and External Liaison at the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO).

In his role at GAO, he supports the Comptroller General in facilitating innovation, capacity building and improving governance and accountability in the United States and with international partners. He is responsible for the GAO Strategic Plan and concurrently manages the agency's relationships with public and private sector organizations, the international audit community, and state and local audit communities across the country. In addition, he is President of the non-profit that publishes the International Journal of Government Auditing, the quarterly journal of the International Organization of Supreme Audit Institutions.

Prior to this appointment, Mr. Blockwood served as the Director for Strategic Studies at the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA). He established the Strategic Studies Group and the department's futures concepts capability. He published VA's inaugural Strategic Environmental Assessment and led the development and implementation of a web-based tool that analyzes and identifies emerging trends. He also created an intergovernmental community of interest to advance long-range problem solving and provide a mechanism to share resources and expertise among federal agencies.

Before joining VA, he served as the Deputy Director for Latin America and the Caribbean at the U.S. Department of Homeland Security and as an intelligence officer in the U.S. Department of Defense. In these roles, he helped implement Homeland Security's first department-wide international strategy and provided counterterrorism and strategic analysis while deployed in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom with the Defense Intelligence Agency.

Mr. Blockwood has a Master of Business Administration and a Master of Arts in Government from Johns Hopkins University, a Master of Science of Strategic Intelligence from the National Defense Intelligence College, and a Bachelor of Arts in International Relations from Tufts University.

Janet St. Laurent

Ms Janet St Laurent is the Director of the Center for Audit Excellence, an organization at GAO whose mission is to build institutional auditing capacity and promote good governance by providing high quality training, technical assistance, and related services to domestic and international accountability organizations. As Director of the Center, Ms St Laurent is responsible for leading the development of Center training and technical assistance services and projects; developing relationships and partnerships with domestic and international organizations with similar goals to build institutional audit capacity; recruiting and supervising Center staff; and developing and implementing sound business processes and internal controls to manage Center activities and facilitate achievement of the Center's mission.

From January 2008 to January 2014, Ms St Laurent served as Managing Director of GAO's Defense Capabilities and Management team. Her principal duties included managing GAO's work on defense issues including force structure, readiness, logistics, infrastructure, defense budget, emerging threats, and military and civilian personnel issues. During her tenure, she led her team to achieve more than $30 billion in financial savings as a result of recommendations made to and implemented by the Department of Defense. She has testified numerous times before congressional committees, including the House and Senate Armed Services Committees. As Managing Director, she also mentored and supported the professional development of 250 staff members by developing team-based training, serving as an Adjunct Faculty member in GAO's Learning Center, and hiring and promoting staff.

While serving as Managing Director, Ms St Laurent was also appointed by the Comptroller General to co-lead GAO's first two congressionally-mandated annual reports examining duplication, overlap, and fragmentation among federal government programs. In that capacity, she worked with numerous GAO teams to develop a methodology and approach and developed a first-of-a-kind report that summarized GAO's analysis. She also testified before the bi-partisan Presidential Commission on Fiscal Responsibility and Reform (Simpson-Bowles Commission).

Ms St Laurent received a Master degree in Public Administration from Syracuse University and a Master of Science degree in National Security Strategy from the National War College. She also holds a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science from the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

Ms St Laurent has received numerous awards at GAO including the Comptroller General leadership award. In 2015, she received the Distinguished Public Administration Alumni Award from the Maxwell School at Syracuse University. In 2011, she was selected as a Samuel J. Heyman Service to America Medal finalist in recognition of her work on national security issues. She has participated in numerous public speaking engagements, including appearances on CSPAN, Bloomberg News, and public radio.

JOHN HUTTON

Mr. John Hutton is the Deputy Director of the Center for Audit Excellence, an organization at GAO whose mission is to build institutional auditing capacity and promote good governance by providing high quality training, technical assistance, and related services to domestic and international accountability organizations. Mr. Hutton supports the Center Director in overseeing the operations and management of Center projects and activities. His responsibilities include conducting outreach with domestic and international organizations to discuss and develop Center projects; assisting with the design and delivery of Center training courses and technical assistance services; and developing and supporting Center business processes.

Mr. Hutton served the Government Accountability Office (GAO) for nearly 35 years, most recently as a Director for the Acquisition and Sourcing Management Team. In this capacity, he provided direct support to congressional committees and members on a range of acquisition and sourcing issues aimed at improving the Departments of Defense and Homeland Security and other federal agencies' ability to buy products and services efficiently and effectively. Such support included testifying before Congress as an expert witness nearly two dozen times on his work. Throughout his career, he planned, supervised, and executed performance audits on a wide range of issues that led to numerous reports, testimonies, and recommendations for improving federal agency programs and activities. Prior to his appointment to the Senior Executive Service, he led reviews on such diverse issues as Iraq and Afghanistan reconstruction, U.S.-Mexico border infrastructure, US and international efforts to combat AIDS, the promotion of U.S. exports, and tax policy and administration. Mr. Hutton also served in GAO's European Office in Frankfurt, Germany, where he traveled and focused largely on defense and foreign affairs issues. In conducting and leading performance audits, Mr. Hutton ensured that all work performed was conducted with competence, integrity, objectivity, and independence as prescribed by the Generally Accepted Government Auditing Standards. Mr. Hutton also served as an Adjunct Faculty member at GAO helping to develop internal training courses and delivering training in the areas of report message development and review, as well as preparing for testimony.

Mr. Hutton received a Masters in National Security Strategy from the National War College, a Masters Degree in Public Administration from Syracuse University's Maxwell School, and a Bachelor of Arts, Public Administration, from American International College. He also attended the Senior Executive Fellows Program at Harvard and MIT's Seminar XXI on Foreign Politics, International Relations, and the National Interest.

Mr. Hutton has received numerous awards at GAO for outstanding performance, including GAO's Distinguished Service Award and Meritorious Service Award. He also received the 2014 Syracuse University Maxwell School Public Administration Alumni Award.
